Visitors Comments

Joe Ebel from Fairfield County Health Department spoke about the mosquito program. The charge for the county to do mosquito fogging is $65.00 per treated mile. The first step is for them to come in and trap to see how many mosquitos are in the area. They send them out for testing for West Nile Virus. If it comes back positive for the virus they will come in and spray that area as a public service. The next step is to find standing water and treat the larvae, this usually happens around April or May. The final step is to spray around the town. The county has an agreement with the EPA that helps with the mosquito program. They just did a tire drive that was very successful. They collected over 1700 tires, which helps keep mosquitos out of areas. If the council decides they want the county to spray for the mosquitos the county will provide a contract for the village to go over.
